Southern Living

Southern living - the words bring to mind majestic plantations, southern belles, magnolia trees, azaleas and a slow-paced, leisurely way of life. This description does not, however, fit life at Florida Southern College, a place where for four years we exhibit a special sort of southern living - modern architecture in the form of our world famous Frank Lloyd Wright designs, sun-kissed eighties women, palm trees, orange groves and constant motion - everyone's on the go!

Florida Southern - a liberal arts college where administration and staff strive for excellence in education and students plan for jobs and careers and actively prepare for them daily. FSC is also a place for making new friends and forming lifelong relationships. Florida Southern is athletics, Greeks, fun, romance, higher education, and wealth of lasting memories.

Southern is living!

Southern Living

Education comes first at Florida Southern. Our academic life is a source of main concern for administration and faculty alike. To create a curricula that is challenging and demanding, while providing an environment in which to learn and prepare for our future is the purpose of the college. As we spend our years at Florida Southern we gain the knowledge that will lead us to success.

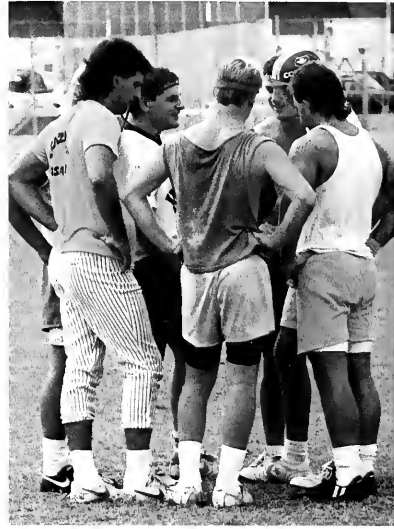

Southern Living

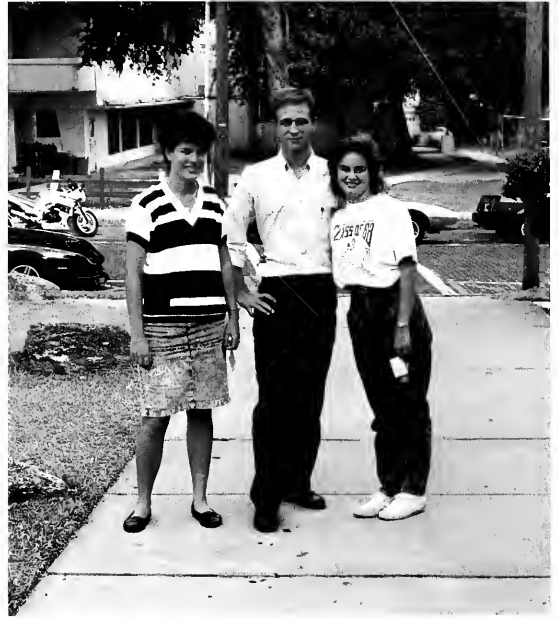

Extracurricular activities at Florida Southern involve almost everyone on campus. Be it Greek activities, intercollegiate sports, honoraries or service clubs, there is something for everyone at FSC.

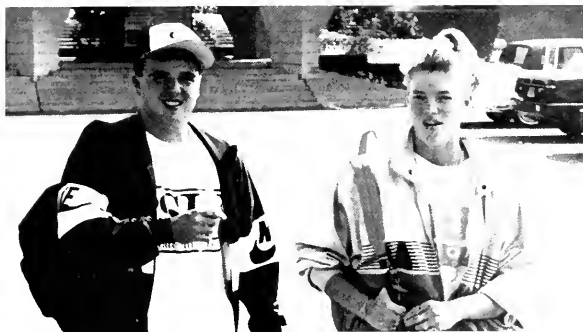

Southern Living

Southern living - in the classroom, in the dorm, on the field or in the caf, it's what we do everyday. As we spend our college years at Florida Southern we experience a special time - memories of learning, fun and friends. At Florida Southern we experience Life!

Notables

Student Life

Student life at Florida Southern College involves time both on and off campus. The many organizations at FSC provide some students an opportunity to make friends and have fun. Other students find entertainment in other places . . . Flicks, the movies or the beach are some of the more popular hangouts. No matter what the time or place, however, FSC students can always be found having a good time.

Juniors Nanette Seacrest, Nancy Hilton, and Shelly Holloway socialize before convocation.

It is 1 o'clock in the afternoon and the congregation has met. The place is the dorm lobby and it is time for . . . "Days of Our Lives." The absentees from the previous day are curiously asking what happened on the show so they can be up to date for today's episode. Commercial break time allows for the scuttlebutt about the previous night and what the plans are for the coming afternoon and evening.

Dear Parent: I think that it is time for the most enjoyable part of college. The times that we all just sit around as a group and talk or watch "Days" makes the pressures and stress bearable. That seems to be the general consensus of the students.

Being a small school allowed for the students to really get to know one another. Friends were able to live together all four years and create some special memories. Rick Kowarick, a sophomore said, "You have a chance to feel comfortable with everyone. You walk to class and see dozens of people you know or have seen hundreds of times before. That's nice."

With all of the fraternities and sororities,

On Campus Activities Plentiful

clubs, teams, and so on, it was hard for any student to be bored. Whether one was participating or observing, everyone always seemed to enjoy themselves. "There are always intramurals to watch, SUB movies and activities, dances, picnics, trips, and appearance from special guests. A popular place to be was at a study break sponsored by the SUB where students could get their fill of ice cream or other goodies.

Still, the reigning social hot spot was the cafeteria. Karen Nichols summed it up by saying, "A lot of the time we just got in there to see everyone and hang out and not even eat." Due to the impossibility of everyone living in one building, the cafeteria provided a large gathering area where everyone could catch up with each other and relax with a hundred of their closest friends.

P. S. Parents: Don't worry. Somehow, somehow, the students still found time to study. So, congratulate them on surviving another busy, but fun year!

Dave Strong

Lawrence Chinsky

Radios and tv's were turned up loud. People yelled down the hall. Some tried to get any studying done while the phone was ringing off the hook.

Living in a dorm was a unique experience that many people away from home went through. "It makes me appreciate home," said one girl, "but it can be fun, too."

Each dorm had a lobby where many people went and visited each other or just went to watch tv. In Jenkins Hall or other guys' dorms, the guys usually watched sports most days, while in the girls' dorms, a lot of girls watched soap operas on weekday afternoons.

Many people were close friends with people in their sections because of how big the dorms were. In Hollis Hall, Bryce Tidwell told about "the nightly baseball game played out in the hall." Sometimes, the guys would use a small piece of carpet as part of a baseball bat.

Many dorms had bathrooms that had to be shared with other people in their section, while the lucky few had their own room and bathroom. That was true for the people who lived on Panhellenic.

The Home Away From Home

People who lived in Panhellenic could go outside and sit on the steps in front of each house and just talk and visit. In the area around the Lambda Chi Alpha house, people stood outside and talked, while watching who else was going on around them.

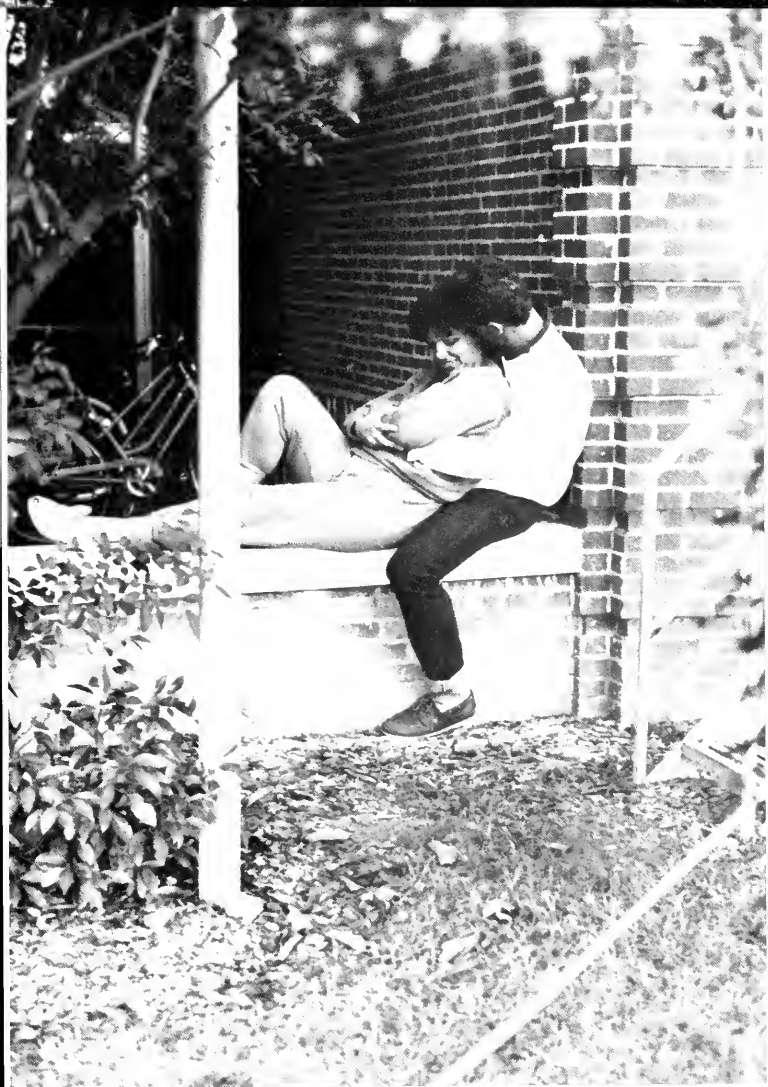

In between all the fun times, time was spent studying in one's room or next door. This was also a good way to socialize.

Each dorm was unique in its own way and each person had to live with it, good or bad... that is, until they went back to home sweet home again.

TIME OFF CAMPUS WAS A MUST

For many students, when the weekend finally arrived, it was a way to forget about college-life for a while, while for other students, off campus activities were a mandatory function to avoid going "nuts."

Off campus activities were more "alive and well" than ever before. Since Lakeland was centrally located in the state of Florida, if a student had to REALLY get away from it all, Tampa was a quick thirty-five minute drive west. Or, if headed east, a Florida Southern College student could make it to Orlando in less than one hour. The list of alternative activities were unlimited.

In addition, many activities were also available in the Lakeland area. Off campus restaurant, such as Bennigans and Chili's, were popular spots for many students who decided it was time for a change from cafeteria food.

Off campus activities most frequently occurred on the weekends. These frequent off campus visits were a must simply because during the week one's time was limited.

As the past has showed us, if not by the empty parking lots on the weekends, the student body depended heavily on "off campus activities."

FITNESS RUNS RAMPANT AT FSC

Living in Florida, having the opportunity to take classes such as tennis and karate compounded with being situated on Lake Hollingsworth made keeping fit and active on the campus of FSC an easy task for every student.

The possibilities were unlimited. One could practice his skills at skiing, go for a larger challenge and become a team member of a collegiate sport, or simply relax and keep fit by walking the Lake - a popular way to keep in shape for many and an activity which became symbolic of FSC.

Another famous way to exercise was the aerobics course offered to students three days a week and at a minimal charge. In addition, such classes as tennis, physical education and dance were courses for which one not only kept himself healthy, but also received credit.

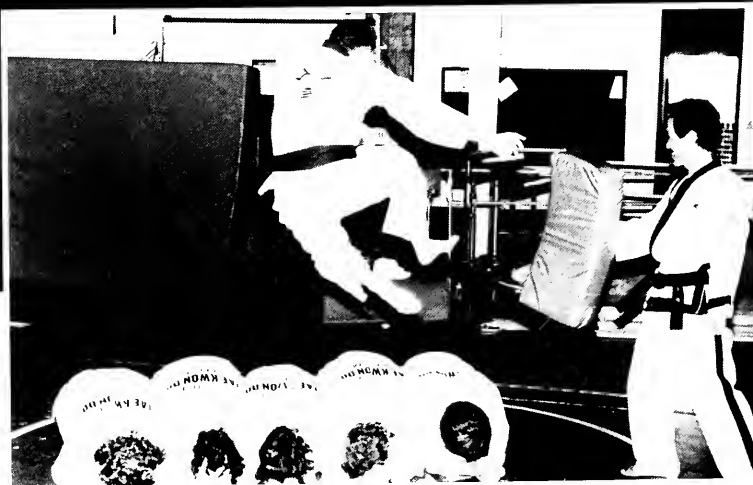

No matter what the activity one chose, all granted the student the opportunity to take care of himself. Senior Patsy Sugo said "keeping fit makes me feel better and good about myself."

There were, of course, the students who didn't bother with fitness at all, but they were as one could assume by the mass of student involvement in a physical activity, the minority.

The majority enjoyed all the benefits of these activities - which ranged from keeping slim to feeling physically better to simply having fun.

Pressure Hits

"I like to go out with my friends and forget about my problems for a while. When I get back I am more relaxed and able to deal with them." Senior Brian Jehle

"I like to walk Lake Hollingsworth when I have a lot of problems. Walking by myself for three miles gives me plenty of time to put things into perspective." Senior Julie Hart

STRESS - A COMMON PROBLEM

On campus stress was a common word. Whether it was tests, classes, fraternity/sorority activities, money, dating or just having enough time in the day for everything, these pressures created stress. Although college was an exciting and challenging period in one's life, the new responsibilities could be overwhelming. There were no parents to remind one go to class, or decide whether or not going out at night was allowed and if so, what the proper time to come home was. Yes, it could be a lot of fun for a while, but when it caught up to the individual, the headaches, stomach aches and irritableness let one know stress had hit!

Even though Florida Southern helped coach their students through the year the stress was great here just as at major universities. Freshman Ellen Griddon explained, "I thought that when I was in high school I had a lot to be worried about. Now that I'm in college, I realize that I had no problems compared to what I'm dealing with now." After college, of course, the tendency will probably be to say the same thing but for now, the stress is real and the Moes found unique ways to deal with it.

Keeping Informed

Omicron Delta Kappa is the nation's top collegiate honor society recognizing responsible leadership. The Florida Southern Circle was established in 1951 and has been involved in campus activities ever since. It has also been very active on the national level as well. Membership in ODK is awarded to not more than three percent of enrolled undergraduate junior and senior students and is thus highly competitive. Included in the membership of the Florida Southern Circle are such well known national leaders as Walter Cronkite and Gerald R. Ford.

It is often a difficult task for students to keep up with the latest breaking news stories and reports, but in 1988 there were many events that happened that we were all aware of.

The year began with the presidential race slowly being narrowed to see who would represent the Democrats and Republicans in November's election. The candidates were picked off one by one but it was not until the nominating conventions did we know that Michael Dukakis and George Bush would be the men to battle it out for the reins of power in America.

In February the world watched the 1988 Winter Olympic games in Calgary. The U. S. had hoped that Debbie Thomas would take a gold medal in the women's figure skating, but it was the East German Katerina Witt who took the top honor. She dazzled the crowds with her flawless skating and in closing ceremony did an entire program to Michael Jackson's "Bad", complete with rhinestone gloves.

Within the state of Florida Lotto fever had everyone buying tickets at a dollar each in hopes of winning the state's jackpot worth millions. In Lakeland, the Deterdale Corporation opened Lakeland Square Mall on March 10. Many FSC students found jobs in the mall's restaurant and bar, Ruby Tuesday.

In school sports, the Mice baseball team had an outstanding season and went on to win the 1988 Division II World Series.

Pop culture in 1988 was filled with some very old and familiar faces as well as some new ones. The Beach Boys made a comeback with their hit "Kokomo", from the motion picture "Cocktail" starring American heartthrob Tom Cruise. Ben Jovi released their first album since "Slippery when Wet" with "New Jersey" and it wasn't long before America was rocking out to "Bad Medicine", that album's first single release. Pop star George Michael brought his "Faith" tour to America and locally rocked both Orlando and Tampa. Def Leppard also brought their sensational "Hysteria" tour to Lakeland.

Rolling Stone Magazine called Tracy Chapman the best new pop singer of 1988, but she wasn't alone. Also new were Bashia (Time and Tide), Breathe (Hands to Heaven) and new in the USA UB40, a British pop-reggae group who placed on the charts with "Red, Red Wine."

Steve Winwood released his album "Roll with It" in the summer of '88 and joined Phil Collins and Eric Clapton in the use of their music and videos in Michelob beer commercials.

World, national and local news in the fall of 1988 was divided among the race between USA's Carl Lewis and Canadian Ben Johnson at the Olympics in Seoul, the last leg of the presidential campaigns for the US president and locally, the quest for an education at FSC.

Carl Lewis set new personal records at the summer games but won none of his five gold medals by default after Ben Johnson of the Canadian team tested positive for drug use.

The end of the year means holidays; and the holidays mean a flood of films for movie-lovers. Bill Murray returned to the big screen and received mixed reviews for his holiday flick "Scrooged" also starring Carol Kane. Americans were forced to suffer watching previews and some even tortured themselves by seeing "Ernest Saves Christmas." Other holiday films included "Cocoon II," and "Kainman" starring Dustin Hoffman and Tom Cruise.

In December Mikhail Gorbachev met with President Reagan and president-elect Bush in New York City to discuss Soviet-US relations during which an earthquake shook the Soviet State of Armenia and claimed over 50,000 lives.

So, things were good and bad in 1988, but we always have next year to look forward to. And that's the way it was ...

Students surrounded the TV like never before to watch the launching of the first space shuttle since the crash in 1986.

The biggest issue of the last of 1988 was, of course, the presidential election.

The Car ... home away from home

Some students at Florida Southern had to do more than just drive in their cars this year; they also ate, slept, studied, and practically lived in their cars.

Who were these unfortunate souls? Why were they doomed to this suffering? They were the dreaded day student.

Over 450 day students out of 2000 boarding students arrived on campus every day to sit in their cars between classes. Most of them parked on the west side of the campus, a quarter of a mile away from the student center and the cafeteria.

The question is, why couldn't something have been done to accommodate the commuting students a little more. It's true the library was open but there's no food allowed and who had time to walk over the campus terrace, get food and walk back to get to class one time.

The average meal for the commuter consisted of a hamburger, fries, and a coke eaten in his car in 90 degree heat or at the other extreme.

Many commuters felt like they weren't able to get involved in the activities on campus because they didn't know about them.

There was one advantage to being an off-campus student. For example, there was less distraction for studying because there were no roommates or loud dorm neighbors. However, it seems that the disadvantages far out weighed the advantages. For instance, commuters felt in general that it was harder to make friends or get involved in activities. The driving time also played a role in the plight of the commuter. Many complained of getting tired of driving day in and day out. Maybe next year commuters and administration can work on making the campus just as enjoyable for the day students as it is for the boarding.

Jackie Gelardi and Debby Milgate talk to Mr. Winzenberg in between classes.

Courage

The student profile, from the time one first stepped foot on campus, was not hard to characterize and generalize. It was easy to see, as was supported by student file statistics, that the majority of students were white, anglo-saxon, and protestant.

But like other universities, it did have its minorities, people who had to struggle perhaps a little bit more to come here, study here and so on. This list included, among others, foreign students, blacks, handicapped individuals, and even those students who came from out of state. This list includes all of those persons, who, because they didn't fit the Florida Southern norm, were perhaps more noticed, either positively or negatively. Dawn Grabowski, a freshman disabled student with Cerebral Palsy commented, "That's partly why I'm a theater major. If they're going to notice me, they might as well look at me for what I do right."

Being noticed is not always negative, and Dawn feels that the college was very good about catering to her needs, saying that "you just have to ask."

Junior Yolie Macon's situation was somewhat different, and although she already had friends here before coming to the college, she feels that, "I have to always be more aware of my color because there are some people who don't want to see me as 100% equal."

And how did the school cater to these individuals needs, to representing the different populations of the world, not only black, but individuals who did not share in the average christian and political belief? Says Yolie, "I think the school should offer more things of a variety. In convo you never have anyone who is black or who is not republican."

Junior Melodie Cassells, from Jamaica, agreed with Macon in that they could have some cultural things for convo, but feels that since she was brought up in Jamaica it's somewhat different for her than other black students, "I didn't grow up with prejudice," says Melodie.

Nonetheless, these students were faced with a number of challenges, as were the foreign students with cultural differences in behavior. Karola Rohlf, an exchange student from Germany said, "At first you can't distinguish between friendliness and sincerity."

No matter what the challenges these individuals faced, from getting used to the weather to the problem of learning new language, none of these students felt as though they were doing anything out of the ordinary. Dawn Grabowski said, "I'm not doing anything special, I'm just living my life like everyone else."

It is 7 o'clock in the morning when the alarm clock starts ringing. The sight of a different environment brings a smile to your face as you realize that you are no longer at FSC. As you stroll through the corridors of the manor you see the splendor in which nobles once lived. You can picture the British upper class as they walk these same corridors. May Option in England was our chance to feel and experience the European way of life.

May Option combined academics with world travel. Academically, it provided a chance to take courses that were not offered here at FSC. There was a requirement of six credit hours in a variety of areas, such as: art, business, science, math and others. Various excursions were offered, which gave opportunity for travel through England and Western Europe. The tour through England covered places as: London, Stratford-on-Avon, Cambridge, Windsor Castle, the historic Roman city of Bath, and the pre-historic monuments of Stonehenge. During a long weekend in Western Europe, students had the opportunity to visit Paris, Brussels, Amsterdam, and the lovely medieval Belgian city of Brugge.

Harlaxton College, near Grantham in Lincolnshire England was as John Avery explained, "a mansion that makes you feel that you have become part of the British aristocracy."

Dr. Thorn, a communications professor here at FSC, participated in the May Option on more than one occasion. He stated that "it is a great way to meet and interact with people of different cultures." Dave Misener, a senior, was part of last year's group of students who went to May Option. He stated that, "I don't regret at all my decision to go to England. I suggest that everyone should go and experience the May Option."

Lights, Camera, Action ...

Imagine that it is opening night and you are waiting backstage just counting off the minutes for the lobby doors to close and the stage lights to come up. The nervous tension builds inside your stomach so you try to think of something else but the only thing that comes to your mind is "wait a minute, what's my opening line," or "I know I'm going to mess up my lines."

As you turn to face the other actors, you can read the same nervous excitement in their faces. Then the house lights begin to fade and the stage lights brighten. "This is it," you say to yourself, "it's do or die."

Even long time veterans of the theatre are known to get opening night jitters, and so it probably was the same for this year's Vagabonds as they presented a well rounded year of theatrics.

The year started with a hilarious British comedy by Micheal Frayn called "Noises Off", which was about a play within a play. According to director Richard LeVene, "anything that can go wrong in the play does." The laughs were practically non-stop as the characters missed cues, props wouldn't work and the character-actors showed terrible acting. The Vagabonds, however, were terrific.

The second production had the audience laughing as well as singing when Charlie Brown and his "Peanuts" friends came to life on stage. "You're a Good Man Charlie Brown" is really "a play that is a series of short comic strip length scenes interposed with music," said director Dan Renz. In fact, the audience probably recognized some of the scenes from the original comic strip, like: Charlie's Brown's monologue about the little red-headed girl or Snoopy's aerial "dog fight" with the infamous Red Baron.

February's production hit the other end of the spectrum with the sobering, but dramatic portrayal of "Diary of Anne Frank." The play was about the two years during World War II in which a Jewish family was forced to hide in an annex to avoid being captured and sent to a concentration camp. When asked why he chose such a dramatic play, director LeVene said that it was an excellent play, but "It's difficult to find someone who fits the character of Anne Frank." The actress had to have dark hair and be able to give a convincing portrayal of a 14-year old girl. So as soon as LeVene saw Jackie Gelardi's ability in last year's production of "The Effects of Gamma Rays on Man in the Moon Marigolds," he knew he had found his Anne Frank.

The Vagabonds final production was a well done representation of the Shakespearean classic, "The Taming of the Shrew." Although the play was originally written for a cast of 25 men and only a few women, there was not enough male actors to fit the script. As a result of the shortage of male actors, director Renz had to make some changes which resulted in a fine production.

For the theatre it was a year to remember. We saw action and we saw drama. There was singing and there was dancing. There was joy and there was sadness. But most of all, there was applause.

And the band goes marching on . . .

The Florida Southern College Band has always been well known all over the state; however, its recognition at this college is one of a fine group of student musicians who travel and represent the college for its non-musical students. The band consists of members of Phi Mu Alpha, Delta Omicron, and anyone else interested in expanding their musical horizons.

The Band tours each year throughout Florida. They leave for a week in the middle of February.

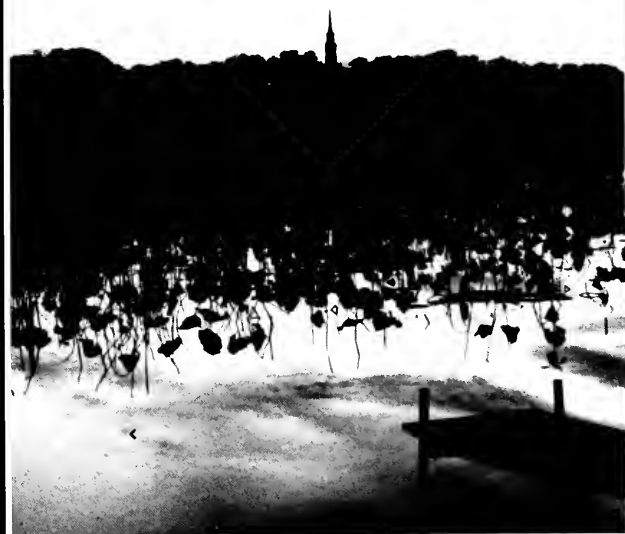

The band travels all over the state of Florida in this week with concerts in such places as Vero Beach, Light House Point, Clearwater, and Naples.

The band performs four concerts a year not including the tour. These concerts include "Music Under the Stars", "Christmas Gala", "Spring Formal", and "The Pops Concert." Each concert includes arrangements of Jazz, Contemporary, and Classical pieces.

The Concert Band certainly deserves the recognition of all the students at Florida Southern College as you might someday see one of them playing for the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Pops Orchestra or the Presidential Band.

Experiencing a Different Culture

According to international students, nothing was more educational and experiencing as traveling worldwide. Being a student in a foreign country meant more than being isolated from your family; it meant experiencing a totally different culture with different rules, traditions, and even rituals. A professional traveler among the student body this year was Louise Van der Schatte Olivier, originally from the Netherlands, but who lived in Zaire, Cameroon, Kenya, Malaysia, and Brazil. Three percent of the student body were international students this year, and their countries ranged from Asia, Europe, Central America, to South America.

Many international students were asked why they chose Lakeland out of all the other options they had. Most of the students wanted to attend a small college in Florida because of the better student-teacher relationship and weather conditions. Students coming from Central and South America were used to warm climates, such as Florida. Some students, like Karola Rohlf from West Germany, were brought to Lakeland by exchange programs.

"The exchange program chose Lakeland above other cities. I wanted to go to New England because it is different from where I live but Lakeland ended up to be a great experience. I do not regret it at all," says Karola. One of the countries with the most students throughout the year was Brazil with seven. They all knew each other from the same American high school in Sao Paulo.

The impressions of the United States were random. Students from Central America had the same impression before and after attending FSC, mainly because of the similar way of life. Students from South America and Europe, however, saw the American as a closed-minded society where everything was practical to the extremes of taking the fun out of some things. Many associated the United States as the 'Land of Freedom,' before they came here. They were surprised to find out that it was not a free country in every respect with strict rules on several issues such as drinking.

As an overview of the United States many students commented on the way Americans limit their knowledge. "Americans should seek ideas and examples from different nations, not being the closed-minded society they are today," says Richard Kowarick. Most of the students saw the United States as one of the powers, but not in all aspects. Some aspects of day to day life surprised them.

The international students thought of themselves as lucky to be able to attend a college somewhere else. Not everybody had the chance to travel and learn from it. Christina Matsas, from Bahamas said she was fortunate enough to come here and make great friends. "Everyone accepts me for who I am," she said.

The Liaison Between Students and the College

Who were these students who came three days before college started, had their schedules not at their desks but at their doors outside, had open house every day and also sometimes at night made bulletin boards, answered thousands of questions, and watched out for illegal alcohol and members of the opposite sex in the rooms? These were JAs and RAs, "the liaison between the student and the college", as the Student Life Handbook formally calls them.

The liaison looked a lot different in the girl's and the guy's dorms. Shannon P. McWilliams, a former freshmen RA who now was in charge of the upperclassmen, said he had a kind of "policeman" function. That thought was confirmed by Barrett S. Schiwitz, a RA in Hollis Hall; he said that "guys are more destructive." He thinks that this is probably the reason why the rooms are more like hotel rooms and not very homey.

Homey is exactly the feeling JAs tried to bring across in their sections. Not that the RAs did not make any effort to do this, it was just not demanded by the boys. The floors in the girl's dorms were decorated; they had birthday parties and candle-lights. And one of the JAs once had to cut her way out of the room because her door was taped with newspaper.

Sometimes sections shifted a little bit in their constellation; Teresa DeFazio for instance had nine girls plus one commuter from another section who came by her room very often. "My section is ready to adopt her," said Teresa.

Getting so close with the time, it was always hard to find a balance between being a friend and being an authority. Teresa told her girls about what happened in another section; namely, that a JA had to report one of her girls. She combined it with a request for her girls "Don't put me in this position." She assured them that she is a friend, but also paid to do her job.

Carla Conte, also a JA in Joseph-Reynolds, pointed out that a main task for the JAs was to think of themselves as a freshman and to remember how it was at the beginning, because "everything is a big unknown to them." "And you also have to make an effort to be in your room at certain times of the day," she said.

That this job meant more than just control was proved by the answer which Debby Milgate and Teresa DeFazio gave independently of one another to the question why they wanted to become a JA; namely, because they really looked up to the JA in their freshman year and became close friends.

SGA

The Student Government Association accomplished several things during the first semester of the 1988-89 school year. The semester began with Club Fest 88, which was a tremendous success, even with rain storms trying to dampen the occasion. Nearly 30 organizations participated, both from school and the community. A great deal of progress was made concerning a copy machine for the students use which was installed in January. The SGA also started a scholarship fund for the Greeks on campus, which provided some funds for one eligible rusher in each Greek organization. One of the highlights of the semester was the semi-annual "Late Night Flap Jack Fling."

The second semester was also very productive. SGA played a role in the Founder's Week Celebration, in that it sponsored the 4th Annual Bicycle Race, house mothers luncheon, and helped out with James C. Rogers/Miss Southern awards. The committee system during the second semester was also very productive, accomplishing several of the senate goal. The SGA also sponsored the Book Swap which is held each semester. Overall, the Student Government Association accomplished many things, which benefited the students, faculty and administration.

SUB

The Student Union Board, made up entirely of students, is responsible for providing activities, entertainment, and cultural events for the Florida Southern Campus. This years activities included trips to Busch Gardens, Sea World and Boardwalk and Baseball. The SUB also sponsored a video dance, study breaks, and free ski days. In keeping with the traditions of the school the SUB co-sponsored both the Greek Week dance and the Founder's Week Coronation Ball.

AWS & Circle

The Association of Women Students, AWS, was composed of elected representatives from all enrolled women at FSC. The purpose of the AWS was to work for the welfare, happiness, and the development of the community life at FSC by maintaining a system of government, making every phase of college life more effective. The Association of Women Students consisted of five major officers, four committee chairmen, and all elected members. The four committees included the Student Life Bulletin/Constitution and By-laws, Education, Projects, and Social Standards. A historian was also appointed to maintain a scrapbook of all AWS activities and projects. Through these committees, AWS made recommendations for changes in the Student Life Bulletin and the organization's constitution. AWS also presented programs and various social activities for the women of FSC. Finally, AWS undertook several philanthropic and fund raising projects throughout the year.

Circle K, is the largest collegiate service organization sponsored by the Kiwanis Club, provided leadership, development and meaningful service to the campus and community. One of the major service projects they were involved in was the AnchorHouse, a home for abused boys, partaking in many fundraisers including taking the boys bowling, to the movies and to amusement parks. Other projects included project concern, save the manatee, MDA and adopt-a-grandparent. Overall, Circle K participated in many campus and community service projects.

Nick Marolda, senior

"Set ... hike", "foul ball", "I got it"; these are some phrases you might have heard, or even become familiar with while on campus in the afternoons. They were attributed to the participants of the intramural program. The program was taken over by Coach Wes Aldrich this year, and with the help of students assistants Melinda Brown, Teresa DeFazio, James Gillie, Nick Marolda and Angie Melton, things ran smoothly despite some difficulties and changes. Teresa DeFazio stated, "I think the program went well, and it was just as much fun working here as it was for those who were playing."

The sports offered were softball, football, team tennis, cross country, volleyball, and basketball, for both men and women. There were several changes which took place in the program this year, some of which were minor rule changes, deduction of points for lack of team participation, and a requirement for all players to have a record of a physical in the infirmary. Some sports were not included in the list offered this year, and soccer was replaced in the women's program with flag football.

A big change in the program was the addition of team tennis which was sponsored by Domino's Pizza. The tennis offered new opportunities for the student's who participated. It was the only sport where men and women were allowed to combine their efforts as a team. It also heightened competition by allowing the top teams to go to Tampa to play in a tournament against teams from other schools at the end of the year. Debbie Bohlander commented, "It gives us a chance to compete in athletics but still enjoy a social atmosphere."

The intramural program gave students a chance to get away from academics and the other pressures of college, and allowed them to blow off steam. The advantages of the program were summed up by sophomore Bill Sirais, "Intramurals is a good way to get exercise and break the monotony of campus life. It also gives a chance to become friends with people we wouldn't usually get together with."

IFC and Panhellenic Council were on campus organizations that existed to help unify sororities and fraternities. They worked hard at providing functions for sororities and fraternities to participate in together. Their main purpose was to establish better Greek relations.

All sororities on campus participated in Panhellenic. Each sorority elected representatives from their sorority to attend the weekly meetings. Panhellenic organized many functions such as an ice cream social for freshmen girls interested in rush. They also organized a display and dessert. Panhellenic sponsored a rape program. This program had representatives from each sorority attend a seminar that taught them how to counsel a rape victim. Panhellenic's participation in these projects were one of many ways that Panhellenic strove for unity.

Intrafraternity Council had the same goals. Once again, all fraternities were in-

COMPETITION BETWEEN THE GREEKS

Many years ago on a small island off the coast of Italy a group of people lived in one of the most advance civilizations of their time. They were the original source of today's Olympic Games. They were, of course the Greeks.

Greek Week was held on our campus from November 14th through the 18th. Teams for Greek Week consisted of either two or three fraternities and sororities matched together. All of the teams participated in several events throughout the week.

The week was filled with fun and peculiar events that brought the entire Greek system together. That was the main goal of Greek Week, to better acquaint fraternities and sororities with each other.

Painted bed sheets hung from the cafeteria walls on Tuesday. Each team painted sheets in a contest to see which team could paint the best. KA Lenny Moore said, "I enjoyed the sheet contest because the fraternities and sororities were able to show their creative abilities." Greek Mythology was the appropriate theme for the sheet contest.

Thursday evening was the night of the Miss Greek contest. Each fraternity and sorority supported one young woman to become Miss Greek. The winner was determined by the percentage of people in attendance for each contestants backing fraternity or sorority. This year's winner was the representative of Pi Kappa Alpha, Krista Marino.

Greek week came to an end on Friday with the Greek Games in the afternoon and the Greek Dance that night. The games consisted of seven separate contests including the bed race, water balloon toss, and the ever popular banana eating contest. The dance closed out Greek Week with a live band. The overall winner were also announced at the dance, and were Zeta Tau Alpha and Theta Chi.

All of the fraternities and sororities seemed to have a great time, but as one freshmen put it, "It's all Greek to me."

Depts. and Clubs

The departments and clubs at Florida Southern form the basis of our academic life. Each department strives for excellence in curricula and therefore excellence in providing higher education for each one of us. The clubs found in each department give us an opportunity to meet and socialize with students who share our interests in a specific subject, while helping us to continue to learn about that subject in a more informal setting.

Seniors

Cheryl Cohen, senior class president

We were all so secure here at FSC. We've spent four years of our lives here and now we have to move on. We all came from different cities and states and now we leave and scatter once again. Starting new lives will be scary but exciting and hopefully FSC has helped us to be prepared for whatever we will be faced with in the future. Good luck to the class of 1989!

Senior Spotlight

John and Bill Buckley, both finance majors from Demarest, New Jersey, are brothers who have played for the Moc basketball team since their freshman years.

In the past four years the Buckley twins have played an instrumental part in the success of the FSC basketball team. John and Bill both feel that while at FSC they have found a "family" within the basketball team.

"My teammates and coaches have been a big influence on me. We're kind of a family", said John.

"My teammates are my best friends. We're like a family and I don't consider my coach just a coach, but also a friend," said Bill.

After graduation John and Bill plan start a personnel business of their own on or near Wall Street. That would keep them close to one of their favorite hobbies . . . playing the stock market.

To the 1989 graduating class of FSC

Tomorrow we will be reminded of each other . . .
taken back to a special place in time . . .
And as we think of one another a certain sort of sadness will fill our hearts . . .
Even though the memories
we have are beautiful and thinking back on them will fill our hearts with joy, our eyes will also swell with tears
because we are so far apart, and we will miss our friends at Florida Southern College very much.

Mike Powell flies high around FSC on his skateboard.

Julia Davis and Larry Masterson share a friendly hug in passing.

Kelly Bloomer watches as her Kappa Delta sisters play softball.

Bubba Rainwater had his first Chinese dinner after he transferred to FSC from Florida State. That dinner set the tone for his last two years of college, for the fortune read "Your expressiveness will bring new opportunities." Bubba said, "I feel that my education at Florida Southern will help me to reach the goals I have set for myself and bring me new opportunities."

SPORTS

The NCAA sports played at Florida Southern show the athletic ability and veratility of many FSC students. Many sports provide non-participating students a chance to gather together and show their red and blue MOC spirit. Many teams at Florida Southern are highly ranked and FSC holds many national titles in golf, baseball, softball, and basketball.

Florida Southern is proud of its athletic teams. GO MOCS!

Although the Striking Mocs did not have a winning season, they did show an improvement in their game. "We had four seniors, five sophomores, and nine freshmen this year. A team that young makes for a growing season. You must begin to get everyone playing with the same tactics. As the season went along, the team got better," said Florida Southern College Coach Sam Snow.

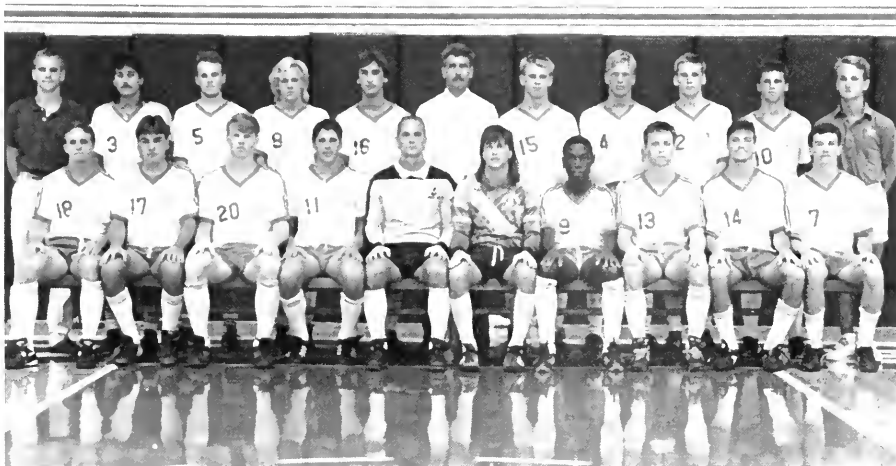

The Mocs finished the season with a 6-10-1 record. Out of the ten losses, six games were lost by one goal, and two games were lost by two goals. In the end, the Striking Mocs finished in sixth place at the Sunshine State Conference.

Returning athletes this season included seniors Tim Moore, Robert Pursell, Tony Schriffert, and Keith Spresser. Returning sophomores were Alan Black, Chris Neri, Barret Schiwitz, Jay Sumner and Jimmy Weekley. Jimmy lead the team with four goals and five assists.

Don Delinks refuels after running in a meet

Many students at Florida Southern College choose to run on the cross country team. Cross country takes strength, agility, dedication, and endurance. Its members gave their best shot. They showed that they were true athletes. Senior Ron Taylor said, "I run cross country because I like to push the body to its supposed limits, and I like the thrill of competition."

The runners began practicing in September. During practice the runners worked on distance and speed. They would practice by running around the lake. "I believe in slow, gradual, steady improvement," said Coach Ed Plowman. "Running should be for fun. If you are not enjoying it something is wrong." Plowman said, "Running is not just physical, but also a social, a psychological, and a religious experience."

This season's volleyball team, coached by Lois Webb was in the top twenty throughout the year. They travelled to California to face the number two and number three ranked teams.

Outstanding senior players this season were Lisa Frisbie, Missey Crain, Trish Gadberry, and Virginia Huck. Lisa Frisbie had the career school record for the most points for the second year. Sophomore Missey Crain held the school record for the most assists with 1350, and senior Trish Gadberry had the team in most assists. Last year's All American offensive player, Virginia Huck, was also a constant player this year.

Under Scholz, FSC teams have average 80.5 points per game overall and in conference games. "We can't wait to get started," said Scholz. "We always feel good about our teams, but I don't know that I've ever felt as good about a team going into a season." Scholz only lost two players from last year's team. Defensive player Michael Dean joins the team this season. Other newcomers include point guard Shaun Fitzmorris, guard David Farnum, and swing man Gary Brown. These players join returning players John and Bill Buckley and Joe Dawson in backcourt. Mike O'Rourke and Derek Flowers join center Kris Kearney and starter Donolly Tyrell and Jason Shinn are returning players.

Coach Norm Benn returned for his fourth year as head coach of the Florida Southern Moccasins. Benn installed the squad's present man-to-man defense which limited opponents last season to just 58.1 points per game, placing the Mocs 11th in the NCAA Division II national rankings. Returning players to the team were Kim Billerter, Nanci Parks, Olga Dominguez, Carolyn Harmon, Molly Malloy, Angie Marley and Angie Norman.

Cheerleading

Leading the Moc fans, twelve spirited cheerleaders brought life to the crowd at home games. The squad works hard on perfecting a variety of cheering routines. During the game, the girls perform their cheers and are aided by mascot "Doc Moc" for less serious cheering.

After competing in four tournaments, the Florida Southern College ski team ended its fall season with fourth place in the Southern Conference.

Returning sophomore John Bonderman led the team in the jump and trick events. Junior Sherry Crawford and sophomore Liz Peoples were also returning skiers.

The ski team has many newcomers this year. Kevin Hart and Neil Ward have proven their skiing ability: Hart in the slalom event, and Ward in the slalom, trick, and jump events.

The ski team is coached by Ken Janata. This is Janata's third year coaching the team.

Golf

With golf clubs in hand, the Florida Southern golf team practices everyday at the Lone Palm Golf Course. The members of the golf team practice individually for 20-40 hours a week. They work on their putting, driving, and sand traps.

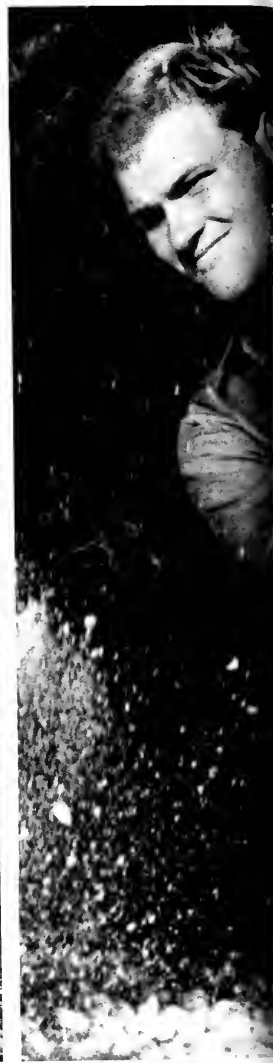

Dave McMillan, Todd Mudge, and Kevin Hester are returning players this season. Mudge was the first String All American in the 1986-87 season. He also won the Florida Intercollegiate Championship. Kevin Hester returns after being out with an injury last season. "We have a good mixture of young and old," said Coach Charley Matlock.

Matlock has been coaching at Florida Southern College for the past 17 years. "I look for concentration, patience, talent, desire, the will to win, and endurance in my players," said Matlock. "It's a privilege to play; if you don't put forth the effort, you can't play in the tournament."

His players also have to be good students. In fact, the golf team has the highest grade point average of any sport team. "Golf probably takes more time and the players do better academically," said Matlock.

The golf team opened their season by playing in the U. S. Intercollegiate Tournament in California.

Tennis

With leading players Dana Suttile and Kristen Henry, the 1988-89 Lady Moc Tennis team continues to be as good as its history. In the past seven years, the Florida Southern college tennis team has had six winning seasons. With four returning players, six freshmen in top positions, the team was in shape. "With a team so young, we're looking down the road," said Coach Ed Jeffries.

Members of the tennis team practiced two and a half to three hours a day. They spent time working on drills, on weights, and in challenge matches. "We improve with each match, it's just a matter of playing some and getting a little self-confidence," said Jeffries. Jeffries has been coaching tennis at Florida Southern for eight years. "I look for the desire to play and win, physical ability and a person who can fit into the Florida Southern College system," said Jeffries.

Returning players included Nancy Toborg, Jill Rickey, and Jule Esper.

Softball

Practice for the 1988-89 Lady Mocs started in the fall; they practiced till November, then started once again in January. They practiced Monday thru Friday for two and a half to three hours a day. Once the season approached they also started practicing on weekends.

Head Coach Chris Bellotto worked with the team refining their fielding, batting, and throwing techniques. "We work on the fundamental of everything in a week long span," said Bellotto. Chris Bellotto, the only head coach the softball program has had, began her tenth season with the Lady Mocs. Bellotto said that the softball team is primarily an older team. "We have eight seniors this year."

Patsy Sugo, Dianne Wiedemann, and Mindy Finch are the captains for the Lady Mocs. "The captains help me in regard to responsibility, generally in the areas of attitude, focus, and direction," said Bellotto. Jill Dittus

Baseball

Since it became more than three years ago, you're out for the 1988-89 Florida Southern Mocc Baseball team after Coach Chuck Anderson started his practice schedule. Fall practice began the first day of classes and lasted for 56 days, until November 1. Spring practice began in January and lasted until May 12. The players practiced everyday from 2:30 til 5:30. Some players also practiced drills and lifted weights on their own. "The players practice the fundamentals and their weakest link in the chain. I emphasize working on weakness and all phases, individual and team, of the game," said Anderson.

Good grades are also a part of the team's regiment. "The NCAA grades are lower than my standards. If you don't make grades, you won't participate this semester. If your grades improve you will be eligible to next year," said Anderson. "Discipline must come first. You're here first for a college education. Second you're to do as well as you can on the field. And third, to have a good social and college life. Most people get out of sequence; they must stay in that order," said Anderson.

Greeks

"Go Greek!", is the cry of many students at Florida Southern— and about 40% of them do go Greek. The Greek system at FSC is quite diverse and involves students from all walks of life. It provides friendship and fun and a strong bond between the sisters and brothers in each organization. Kelly Bloomer, a Kappa Delta sister said, "The Greeks exist to give the students the opportunity to gain friendship and quality experience in leadership and communication skills as well as long term relationships."

— a look at 1989 —

— class of '89 —

Friendship is a magic thing, able to bring a smile from a memory; able to share a part of another's life. It doesn't matter how large a part; what matters is the feeling of warmth it produces: the sunshine added to the day because of a smile freely given; a kind thought sincerely sent. These things are just small parts of the magic of friendship. Friendship has no barriers; only a choice to share a part of another's life, however briefly, and to let another share a part of your life.
